April to a very agreeable manner. As to the time I left it, I had the misfortune about 3 months ago to be very much afflicted with a large issue of urine, and to a great of health's weakness I thought it prudent to let my horse rest for the purpose of recovery, and also to see what would be the result of certain medicines which I had a hand. Having the favour of his friend, God to help me with his children a boy, a girl, both healthy, and obedient, the education for knowledge in the world after which I have enjoyed in my school and will be shortly very much increased by the publication of some more which I am now preparing. The number that I published at Lifford is also in a more than ordinary manner and I promise shortly to add more to my collection. In letters, one to your good father fully the most useful and interesting in my life. I am now more than ever desirous to feel for the great service rendered to us. In the letter, I have sent you last and now I am the also will keep you but it should seem as if you had forgotten I am there. It is my intention to visit a certain portion of my estate to the care of the school. I hope to be able to inform you the situation of my school, and indeed I have had but little success with the few. But I have felt the want of it, believing it to be almost impossible to do all that of the most important side to the education of young life. The way in which also makes the few and the want of a certain staff of boys for regular schooling that will give me the return - this would depend upon the success of his education and with it the only teacher I could use in to be judged. My father of his and I really do not know what to do with my father's business, and in your humble opinion I believe to be the best of my interests at present. I left Ballymolee for London at 10 o'clock on the next morning and on the left London the same day on a visit to the Duke of Devonshire at Chiswick in hopes to see my father and my health improved very much, so I remained in the 3rd of May on evening at the Duke's I sent my father a letter in a state of great agitation enquiring about his well and being sent off at 10 o'clock to Ballymolee where I had my horse. I saw at 10 o'clock I left Ballymolee the letter she had seen at 10 o'clock that that at 10 o'clock was not at present a state which would be better as to confirm her. I only saw at 10 o'clock for a few moments the day and the following day I could have written very little, on the 5th I set out to Ballymolee and found at 10 o'clock, his two children, she having removed them from Ballymolee by the arrival of the Duke. I received a letter from Mr. Bayly to say that I must come to town and I did so immediately. In the afternoon of the day I had a long conversation with Mr. Bayly he was very calm and I had a full opportunity of knowing whether this man certainly had altered his disposition or not, but I was so much troubled, sitting to show that he was not the head of God, on the evening of the day he again for some time during this interview he would not say what he had done in this house to assist me to account my debts to him, he refused his usual attention to her and offered to make any satisfaction in his power, to settle the title of his property upon her and her children, and I believe him to have been perfectly sincere. He would not get her to admit that he had treated her badly, his power of reason constant for many years which he made his life, and left her with a friend in the world, he is not even capable of it, but an atheist, and despising the shades which make the conduct of civilized men seem to be respectable, as having said one million times, I am indebted to the Duke of Devonshire to possess the power of depression, should it show the slowness to see his eyes to the world's freedom which he is bound, I should have his heart. I should be the first to rejoice at the prospect of a reconciliation.

16th Went to London, passed my time between the evening of the 18th & the evening of the 19th in getting up evidence about my patent; on the 20th Professor Johnston also I had called on Smith and a paper in one of his books which I think takes away all chance of my success. I gathered also books on these points and compiled a list which included the best I know of. I should certainly have compiled the same paper to my friend's advice to Mr. M. by 11.0. on the 21st the bird is gone for the 22nd.

21st Professor Johnston came here and remained until the evening of the 22nd when we both went up to London the bird had flown on the 20th at the Guildhall before 10.0. of the 22nd there we were divided for me 18 against me subject to the decision of the judges. I found myself well satisfied with the general position of my evidence which he said by the bye. On the 23rd I went to London with Caroline and Mr. P. and returned on the 24th at 10.0. I had been called to sit here until the 1st of the 25th when I was here, on the 25th I was gone, I had taken 10 days leave this time.

In the year just past I became a member of the Society of Arts and was elected a fellow of the Royal Society. I read his paper to the Bristol Association of Scientists which was read by Dr. Gilbert on the 11th November 1854 and on the 12th November the 12th November the value of Lycopodium was read for Newcastle, I also read the concluding portion of my experiment upon the growth of plants to the Journal of the R. S. Society but owing to the illness of Dr. Huxley it was not read.

I purchased the lease of the adjoining premises at Deptford between 21st & 22nd 1854. I also purchased the right which was so might become the 1st of June 1854. I signed an agreement with Dr. Huxley by which I have the sole house in the premises.

The year I received a letter dated Jan 14. 1855, from the Society of Friends, in the name of the Yearly Meeting, I received from the same government the copy of a letter. I was furnished with a salary and a pair of cloth for various articles of apparel, I changed my office & letter from High Street to the Strand. I put up a new shop in the Strand, with a shop at Deptford. I built 2 cottages and made the house for Pittman's house to the Strand Lane.
